

Course Outcomes: PHIL 235

Survey of World Religions

The following are working course outcomes. These outcomes will be reviewed by the NWIC Curriculum Committee during the curricular review process in 2017 with the intent of creating and approving course outcomes.

At the completion of this course students will be able to:

- Recite the five main beliefs of several of the world's religions
- Identify the main philosophic and dogmatic conflicts between the world's major religions, including their origins and current problems in the modern era
- List the major religions philosophical concepts in terms of conflicts and harmony with other religions and identify the causes of these conflicts and harmonies. (This will include the assessment of Native American religious/spiritual beliefs and concepts)
