The Director of Financial Aid reviews appeals at the beginning of each quarter. The circumstances leading to suspension of aid, the steps you have taken toward success in future quarters, and your prior academic history will be considered. You will be informed via your NWIC student email of the Director's decision.

Appeal for SAP Review due to COVID-19

Students have the right to appeal for a change in their financial aid eligibility status if their failure to maintain satisfactory progress was due to the COVID-19 disruption. Documentation is required. The Director of Financial Aid reviews appeals. All decisions made are final and cannot be appealed further.

Limits and Exceptions

If the completion of a probationary quarter would not lead to SAP, an appeal cannot be granted. Appeals are applied only to Winter 2020, Spring 2020, and Summer 2020 thus far. Students that were in suspension prior to Winter 2020 may appeal, but may still be in a suspension status depending on their credits and GPA prior to Winter 2020.

Payment/Appeal

If aid is suspended, students are required to pay their own tuition until such time as they again meet the guidelines for making satisfactory progress.

Earn Reinstatement

If an appeal is not approved, students have the right to earn reinstatement by completing a minimum 1 quarter of 6+ credits on their own. The quarter(s) must be completed in good standing. It may take more than 6 credits to get back into good standing. For federal aid, students must complete a minimum of 66.67% of their cumulative and quarterly credits while maintaining a minimum cumulative 2.0 GPA. For state aid, the student must complete 100% of their quarterly credits while maintaining a minimum cumulative 2.0 GPA.
